Newspaper men and business men observe:

During the last six months, and since increasing its price to 3c, the Chicago Herald-Examiner has gained in circulation 17,362 daily, a greater gain than that of any morning or evening newspaper in Chicago selling at any price. The Herald and Examiner's only morning competitor sells at 5c.

The circulation of the Herald and Examiner exceeds that of the New York Times by more than 45,000, that of the New York World by more than 11,000, that of the New York Herald by 178,000, that of the New York Tribune by 258,000—all those New York papers sell for 3c. And what is true of the Herald and Examiner's growth and success is true of the Hearst newspapers everywhere.

England's great coal strike, which would mean paralysis of England's industries, seems close at hand. Organized labor, really untamed, as in England, is a great power. The coal miners are able to say truthfully to the government: "We are striking, demanding better wages for ourselves and cheaper coal for the public, and the whole thing could be paid for with the $160,000,000 that you are squandering in Mesopotamia, on your trelling natives and territory to which you have no right."

It is a little difficult for the British government to answer that statement. You can't handle British miners with an off-hand injunction.

Two encouraging, sound statements have come recently from Mr. Hoover. First, he says this government should try to do something for American children, giving to the poor at least one essential meal in school every day.

Second, he says that in price adjustment "wages need not drop if production increases." Few American business men see this clearly, as Mr. Hoover does, although history proves it.

Before looms were perfected cheap cotton cloth cost $1.00 a yard, although workers could be hired at 75c a day and less. With perfected machinery and increased production prices dropped to 50c a yard, although the wages were trebled.

The Shipping Board, supposed to represent the American people, says it must enter a combine with England and other countries against French ships.

The reason, if you please, is that the French CHARGE TOO LITTLE FOR FREIGHT, and that it is a combine to keep rates up. Some Americans thought the government's business was to protect the people against conspiracies to RAISE PRICES. Our kind of government fights an effort to REDUCE PRICES.

Unhappy Mrs. Miserlin, poor, unable to care for more children, and insane for the moment, cut the windpipe of her two-year-old baby. The doctor sewed it up and it will live.

Mrs. Feduchina and her husband dreaded the arrival of another child. They sent the three-year-old daughter to borrow fifty dollars to help out, but she failed. So the husband, out of work, with a big family, jumped out of the window.

These cases will interest "Birth Control" advocates, who think the birth control knowledge that respectable doctors give freely to prosperous women, should not be withheld from the poor.

Others will tell you that if Nancy Hanks had understood birth control Abraham Lincoln would never have been born in that hut without windows or floor. The world probably owes a great deal to child-bearing forced upon ignorant women. It is a difficult question, but not all conceded.

The Federal Reserve Board promises to provide cotton planters and wheat growers with credits to help them and the nation to avoid disaster. It is to be hoped the promises will be made good and credit at fair rates of interest who extended through bankers to business men, manufacturers and others. That is a better use of American money and credit than financing European armies in their wars against each other.

WOMAN'S DEATH IN DOBLEN RIOTS

Autopsy Ordered in Case of Miss Mary E. Roddy of Somerville, Pittsfield Victim

State chemists today began an analysis of the vital organs of Miss Mary E. Roddy of Somerville, whose death in a Pittsfield hospital is under investigation.

The organs were turned over to the coroner, Attorney C. M. Wright of Pittsfield, who also commanded the autopsy.

Miss Roddy was thirty-seven years old, and a daughter of the late Thomas Roddy, Brighton real estate operator. She was one of six beneficiaries in a $10,000 property he left to his six daughters.

CAUSE OF DEATH.
She died Wednesday in St. Luke's Hospital. At that time the cause of death was given as heart infarction and pulmonary trouble.

Pittsfield authorities ordered the post-mortem because of conflicting reports by members of the family as to the disposal of the body. It was brought to the city from Somerville.

Mrs. Vincent Astor to Travel in Steamer

MRS. VINCENT ASTOR.

New York, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Vincent Astor is going to find out just what it is like to come to America in the steamer and pass through Ellis Island.

Accompanied by Frederick A. Wall, commissioner of immigration, William Pelletier Morgan, president of the Merchants Association, and Byron Newton, collector of the port, she will board the incoming White Star liner Adriatic down the bay and accompany the steamer passengers through Ellis Island until they are admitted to the country.

The party will go through the full procedure to which the alien arriving in this country are subjected. The trip is said to have been inspired by the League of Foreign Born Citizens. Its object is to study the psychology of the immigrant to further the cause of Americanization.

The party left the Battery at 7 a. m. and boarded the Adriatic at quarantine. It will travel in the stateroom to the steamship pier and be taken to the island on the immigrant barge.

On Ellis Island the party will pass in review before the medical officers and after receiving their official "discharge" will be landed.

GARDENER ARRESTED IN $100,000 JEWEL THEFT
New York, Oct. 15.—Charles Starrett, a gardener, was arrested by State troops in connection with the $100,000 gem robbery at the alleyway Hotel Country Club which has been hanging over the city for a few weeks.

Starrett was caught while helping up an automobile after night other cars had been held up.

Although the girl gave her maiden name, she said the reason for her arrest was the refusal of her husband to give her a divorce. Relative said she married a man named Roddy who was a few weeks ago.

She was prevented from taking her life as she left the theatre by a man who seized the bottle. He returned to the theatre.

LEE STORY BY MRS. KENYON

Reveals Recital of Love With Dr. Tetlow Which Ended in His Death

Norwich, Ct., Oct. 15.—Calmly and in well-chosen words, Mrs. Mabel Kenyon today described before a crowded courtroom her relations with Dr. Herbert Tetlow, for whose murder she is on trial here.

Beginning with their meeting in a croquet game, when she was but 17 years old, Mrs. Kenyon told a chronological story of her long acquaintance with the slain physician, weaving a little as she related the circumstances of her first visit to his apartment.

"This she said was on the occasion of an illness from which he suffered when he was his sweetheart and that he had found her again just as he was to die. This was in 1915.

The accused woman showed increasing nervousness as she told of her life with the doctor, and of her growth near her to take the witness stand.

The court room was crowded. To the children, Charles, aged twenty-one; Norman, aged sixteen; and Francis, aged thirteen, their mother was permitted to sit with them.

The explanation given is that "intoxication has become alarmingly more prevalent than before the enactment of the Volstead act."

"Mothers and children are inordinately or otherwise partaking of opium, cocaine, or other drugs or similar ingredients," the regulation continues. "The effect of which is to bring about in many cases a startling condition of intoxication in homes where it has never been known."

The regulation has been mailed to all "congressional nominees of the State of New Jersey."

British Coal Strike Called

London, Oct. 15.—The general strike throughout the British coal fields will go into effect tomorrow, when more than 1,000,000 men will lay down their tools, the Federation of Miners officially announced this afternoon.

"In view of the government's unsatisfactory reply to the executive committee, has telegraphed to all coal mining districts for work to cease tomorrow."

"This announcement killed all hope that the strike might be averted by eleventh-hour intervention by the government."

The government has placed an embargo on the exportation of coal. Amending of the National Union of Railwaymen has been called for tomorrow to decide what action, if any, shall be taken to support the coal strike.

OKLAHOMA TO OBSERVE LEAGUE OF NATIONS DAY
Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 15.—It was announced at the office of Governor Robertson that he would issue a proclamation making October 15 League of Nations Day in Oklahoma, calling on the people of the State to take that day for study of the covenant.

O'Brien at Mass Meeting
William H. O'Brien, candidate for Congress in the 12th district, will hold an open air mass meeting to night at 8 o'clock at Dudley street and Mount Pleasant avenue in Roxbury.

DOCTORS FAVOR BEER AND LIGHT WINE
New York, Oct. 15.—Use of light wines and liquors is recommended by the Port Authority, N. Y. Medical Society in a resolution just adopted. The resolution suggests the modification of the Volstead act so as to permit their use.

The explanation given is that "intoxication has become alarmingly more prevalent than before the enactment of the Volstead act."

"Mothers and children are inordinately or otherwise partaking of opium, cocaine, or other drugs or similar ingredients," the regulation continues. "The effect of which is to bring about in many cases a startling condition of intoxication in homes where it has never been known."

The regulation has been mailed to all "congressional nominees of the State of New Jersey."

RAID EXPOSES 'RUM RUNNING' ROUTE

The acute sense of smell of Motorcycle Policeman John R. Hegon of the Lynn force and the alertness of Edward Moore, a lunchcart man, led today to one of the largest and most spectacular roundups of 100-proof alcohol and assorted liquors made in the State since prohibition went into effect.

A truck load of 265 gallons of spirits in ten-gallon containers, was seized near the Saugus line, 650 gallons was located on Cummings street, Revere, five men were arrested and evidence discovered of a water route for contraband liquor from New York to Boston, and from Boston to Newhall's wharf in East Saugus.

With an early morning setting of the waterfront, the scene and capture of the truck driver, the covering of the prisoner with guns, raid of the alleged Revere cache and attempted bribery of Motorcycle Policeman Hegon with $100, the affair had all the thrills and spectacle of a movie production.

UNIQUE WORK OF ART AT MUSEUM

Mancini Painting of St. John the Baptist Is Added to Big Collection

A remarkable painting of St. John the Baptist, a nineteenth century Italian, is among the recent notable additions to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. The masterpiece was purchased from the Arthur Gordon Thompson fund. It hangs in Gallery VII.

Mancini's "St. John the Baptist" is unique in its use of strange tricks of technique to give effects. His use of color and glass is imbedded in the masses of paint, producing startlingly beautiful effects.
Among other recent acquisitions are several gifts from Dr. Benjamin W. Rose. They are mostly tapestries. Among them are Italian tapestries of the sixteenth century, Italian wall-paints of an even earlier day, a fragment of Coptic weaving, specimens of Kufic writing, and an Indian bracelet and amulet.
Among other gifts to the department of paintings are the following: An anonymous "Christ Arisen" of the sixteenth century Italian school, given by the Boston Art Club; a "Head of a Boy" by Botticelli, given by Miss Mary Woodman; and a portrait of a "Lady" by R. C. and N. M. Vane, given by Mrs. H. M. Vane. A portrait of a "Lady" by R. C. and N. M. Vane, given by Mrs. H. M. Vane.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—The third man to be hanged in Chicago within twenty-four hours, paid with his life on the gallows in the county jail today. When his twelve-year-old sister died of his feet and begged him to kiss her good-bye, he gave her away and cursed the guards for permitting his family to come near him.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA
If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell
The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, brown and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage. Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the money mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wynette Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular, because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and what remains the color of the hair after a few applications. It also produces that soft lustrous and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.—Advertisement.

Never forget, that day in and day out the year around, your money will buy MOST at Morse's because HERE the middleman is eliminated.

And besides, to meet replacement conditions, we have marked our clothes at rock bottom, utterly disregarding a reasonable margin of profit.

Come and inspect our clothes, whether you intend to spend $30, $40, $50 or $60, then compare them with "mark downs" elsewhere, after the axe has done its work!

YALE-BOSTON COLLEGE GRID STARS READY FOR BITTER BATTLE

RESISTANCE OF Rival Stars in B. C.-Yale Game

BIG GAME IN DOUBT

Great Raft of Important Contests Slated for Tomorrow.

Williams Plans to Score

By CHARLES E. PARKER
In forecasting the winner of the first contest on the accompanying list only second-hand information was available. That favored Yale, and this favor gained strength when John Warner, a team was twice scored upon last Saturday.

In favoring Harvard over Williams, the C. team, from whom we did not expect a victory, was not only a surprise but a revelation of the fact that the three teams will be still more engaged in a bitter contest.

Of the remaining favorites noted above only two, Yale and Boston, have drawn opponents of the caliber of the eleven positions, while the third, Harvard, has been far from impressive and even its Coach Robinson's eleven is not the logical winner of that contest.

Yale's line heavier and stronger

However, notwithstanding the quality of Harvard's crew, Yale commands the line, not only in strength but in weight and strength. The line from Yale is the best in the country, and it is the only one that has been in the line for the last three years.

It is possible Yale has been conserving its efforts for tomorrow's contest. Yale's line is the best in the country, and it is the only one that has been in the line for the last three years.

The 1919 Yale-Boston College game was featured with rough play. The game was a close one, and the result was a tie.

Both Teams Prepared for Bitter Contest

Smash-up tactics are being talked at both institutions, but whether the players themselves will enter the game with this attitude is not known.

The one feature that is worrying Boston College authorities is the reported fact that Harvard is planning to play a football game at Yale on Saturday.

Captain Horner Out of Williams Game

Harvard will be without Captain Horner in its game with Williams tomorrow. Horner is a back number and will not be fit for battle until the contest next week.

Whenever you buy Shuman clothes you may be sure you are getting maximum value at the lowest price.

To be safe, price adjustment must be gradual. Business men know that any sudden and drastic reduction in price means disaster.

Shuman Clothing, while lower in price than last year, cannot at the present time be marked any lower. We sell the best clothes made—workmanship, style, fit and fabrics are second to none. Made in our own shops in New England labor, the middleman's profit is eliminated.

Labor is higher than ever before, materials for this fall were even higher, (the price reduction on woollens does not take effect until next spring,) transportation rates are higher. Knowing this, you will wonder how we can sell clothing at lower prices, yet we are doing so, by taking less profit.

New Railroad Law Economic Disaster to the People

The Massachusetts State Chamber of Commerce heard some gentlemen discuss the Esch-Cummings law, known as the Transportation Act of 1920.

Mr. Thom, counsel for the railroad managers, called it the "economic triumph" of the day.

Yes, it was an "economic triumph" for the old-fashioned railroad managers, who wanted to get back on their enormous pay-rolls again and to return to the good, old-fashioned private mismanagement, this time entirely at the expense of the public and met conveniently out of the public treasury.

It certainly was an "economic triumph" for these old railroad managers so to provide things by law that they can lose the taxpayer's money at the rate of six hundred and thirty-four million dollars every six months. Think of it, ladies and gentlemen, who read this newspaper—private management of the railroads is costing us out of the public treasury one thousand two hundred and sixty-eight million dollars a year. At the present rate of expense of the railroads, under private management, the railroads are costing the country more than four times as much as they cost under government control and management.

This is only one item of cost to the public. Under this "economic triumph" the cost of living by the raise of rates alone has been increased over two hundred dollars to every family in the United States.

And THIS is not the whole story of the cost of returning the railroads to private control. The service immediately became demoralized throughout the country, an enormous freight jam following private management, and just as the government had taken control of the railroads during the war in order to get the grain to the ships for transportation to the troops in France, to the government, through the Interstate Commerce Commission, had within a few weeks of the return of the railroads to private management again to take control to prevent a total collapse of service.

A law which allows the old private managers to return to their high salaried crib and, when their incompetence has reached a climax, permits them to call in the United States Government to straighten them out; and when they find that their ordinary rates will not pay the cost of private management, permits them to increase their charges to the American people so that the cost of living to every family has increased by more than two hundred dollars a year; and when this enormous increase of rates is insufficient, a law which enables them to call upon the government to raise for them more than a thousand million dollars a year by taxation, is surely an "economic triumph" for the railroad managers.

But it comes very near being an economic disaster for the American people.

Compulsory Education for Our Military Camps

Professor Spaulding, head of the department of education at Yale, makes an interesting suggestion concerning compulsory education.

He thinks that education should be compulsory in a military training camp along with military instruction. The amount of literacy which the statistics of our National Army revealed during the draft was shocking to the pride of the American people. We, who believed ourselves to be the best educated people on earth, found that by taking too much for granted and by relying too much upon our early leadership we had been overtaken by other nations.

Professor Spaulding thinks that it is very necessary to instruct the youth of this country from eighteen to twenty-one, and he calls special attention to the opportunity which the mobilization of our youth in training camps would give to the Americanization of our foreign elements through education.

In this Professor Spaulding is not entirely original. Secretary Daniels of our navy had this idea when he first took office. He found a great many of the boys in the navy sadly lacking in education and with a great many idle hours on their hands and with the danger that these idle hours might become the devil's workshop. He found officers of the navy also with idle hours and in the possession of a good education which their country had given them free, supporting them while it was given to them. This education Secretary Daniels considered to be held in trust for the benefit of those of their countrymen whom they could help, and the boys whom they could help were under their command during periods of the day when not in actual military exercise.

It was a novel idea and Secretary Daniels encountered a great deal of opposition among the officers. He was laughed at, but he insisted, to his great credit.

The mobilization of our young men in military training camps will certainly give the opportunity for compulsory education that tens of thousands of our young men need, and it will be one of the many great advantages of compulsory military training.

One Reason Why Automobile Accidents Increase

The following facts constitute a good illustration of the reason why automobile accidents are increasing in this Commonwealth.

Sunday in the town of Walpole an automobilist observed another car approaching from the opposite direction wildly zig-zagging from curb to curb. The automobilist slowed down his car at a loss to know what to do, when suddenly the wild-cat car crashed into his car, smashing the windshield and the forward parts of the automobile. Worse still, his wife was cut up about the face and hands and quite seriously injured.

The operator of the zig-zagging car was under the influence of liquor. The next day he pleaded guilty in court and was fined $50.

Fifty Dollars! It cost only $50 to put several human beings in danger and to injure seriously one of them. And it would cost months of imprisonment to steal a little food for a hungry family.

The False Ideal

Lincoln was right. You can fool all the people some of the time and some of the people all the time, but you can't fool ALL the people ALL the time. Some of the people are still fooled by the false promise of the people clearly see that it is not a Peace League, but a War League. Uncle Sam will NOT step off the brink to be impaled on bristling British bayonets.

More Truth Than Poetry

Too Much of a Good Thing

By A. E. WISER

HE found, when he awakened there,

That heaven was all he had expected;

The weather was divinely fair;

He saw no devil misdirected;

There had been no exaggeration,

The gates were made of precious pearls,

And music, free from syncopean,

Was lured from hurly by lovely girls.

THERE was no bitterness, no strife,

No selfish bartering, nor straining;

No man sought pleasure while his wife

Was left neglected and complaining;

He saw no puny children toiling,

No stupid scribbles wasting ink;

There were no bars where men were soiling

Their sleeves while lingering to drink.

NO gilded warriors strutted past,

No thieves nor profiteurs were present;

There was no clasp of creed or caste;

He heard no word that was unpleasant;

There was no bribing, and no cheating,

No favor to be bought or sold;

He saw no vulgar people eating;

The streets were paved with solid gold.

HE had been there a week, and all

Was lovely still in each direction:

There had not been a single brawl,

No outbreak troubled any section.

He yawned—his visage was a plum thing—

And said: "I'll die here pretty soon;

I wish there was a fight or something

To go to see this afternoon."

Letters to the Editor

England's Vision Sane

Editor Boston American:

Mr. H. N. Bell, through the medium of your paper, has asked why a Scotsman's voice is never raised in condemnation of England.

That is surely an unnecessary question.

Far be it from me to write a sultry on England; every intelligent American knows, that the proud position she now holds among the nations is not only due to the clarity and sanity of vision of her counselors in the past, but to a policy which deals out absolute justice to the deserving and undeserving alike.

If that part of the Irish people designated Sinn Féiners have chosen to go into the latter class that is their fault in following their warm and impulsive nature to come under the sway of a body of men who are spreading terrorism throughout the length and breadth of Ireland.

As a Scotsman who has fought with the American army in France and intends to make America his home, may I draw the attention of all intelligent Americans to the proverbial which England has had in these past months to show every Sinn Féiner on sight, and yet her tolerance with Ireland, even when she was in a war which threatened her very existence, but shows to the world that she treats Ireland at present more as a disobedient child than a criminal power.

Scotland, alas, are stained with the blood even of their own kinsmen while in the execution of their duty.

Scotland May Consent

Editor Boston American:

It might possibly enlighten your correspondent of a few days previous who obviously delighted in pointing out that since Scotland does not wish independence, Ireland had no right to be free, that more learned men than he (and possibly more just) maintain and have maintained for 144 years that "the right to govern is derived from the consent of the governed."

If England consents to English rule, let Scotland consent to English rule, but as view of the fact that Ireland repudiated English domination, absolutely, let John Bull recognize, as he finally must, that the spirit of Ireland cannot be broken. PHILIP A. DALLAY.

MAKING OF COFFEE A LOST ART

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1920, Star Company

Cleveland, Oct. 10.

IT is a depressing fact that coffee making isn't what it used to be in this country.

The coffee in the race is doubtless up to the same old standard, but what is being done to the coffee in pots and percolators in these United States of America is a sin. It really should be made a crime. The coffee drinkers of the nation should get together and pass laws to make the above of coffee in the cooking an offense punishable by deportation to Germany. Bad coffee makers would be perfectly at home in Germany.

Few Good Ones

Coffee making used to be one of the most magnificent arts in America. Now you can probably name the truly great coffee makers of the country in a corner of a paragon.

My friend, Colonel Botsman Buiger, of Lynbrook, Long Island, is one. My friend, Colonel Buiger, can take a quart of coffee and a pint of water and with a little steaming produce an elixir that will grow rich on a billiard ball.

He is, also, one of the few survivors of a vanishing race.

The best coffee in this country is made in some of the highest grade hotels in New York. It ought to be pretty good, because they charge enough for it. It isn't as good, however, as it was some years ago.

In Boston

The Boston hotels used also to have great coffee, and I regret to report a serious decline in that sector. The South once had a great reputation for its coffee and coffee makers. I judge they existed mainly in private homes, for outside of a few cities below the Mason and Dixie line I never found coffee in Southern hotels and restaurants that caused me new regrets.

New Orleans, yes; Norfolk, yes; Richmond, yes. I do not recall many others. The Middle States were never known for good coffee, and it has not improved with the passing years. As for the Rocky Mountain West, I can only say that it is my home country, and I do not believe in a man knocking his home country.

APPLES

MAN, you know, once ate roots, bark and bulky fibrous foods. Nature equipped him with internal capacity to winnow his nutriment out of a great mass of filth—"roughage," the doctors call it.

Nowadays man's food is condensed and refined and the great intestine of his, a survival of primeval times, does not behave as it should.

That is one reason why it is good for well persons to eat apples, which are roughage.

Apples contain fibre, which serves as roughage.

They also contain iron, which makes you strong. That rusty patch on the cut surface of an apple shows the iron.

Apples have other food values and medicinal values, but, best of all, they taste good.

So if you can afford 'em, eat 'em. By a little co-operation in buying and storing them you ought now to be able to get a winter's supply cheap.

CONCENTRATE AND RELAX

You hear a great deal about concentration, and when you try to concentrate you think so much about the effort you are making that you do not concentrate, after all, on the object you are supposed to focus your mind upon.

You become so tense that you are wholly incapable of doing the best there is in you.

Relaxed concentration is what you want.

Sounds conflicting, does it not? But it isn't.

You have been engaged in certain sports or certain kinds of work where it was necessary to go at them in an easy, relaxed way to accomplish anything, and when you put forth the easy, swinging effort you did well.

Why? Because your mind and body were relaxed and thus easily entered upon what you wanted to do—and was not overtaxed with the effort you must put forth.

The long, easy stroke or pull of the row tell the expert coxswain, and the real hold the anchor pulling the Babe Ruth to knock another home run.

CHANGE IN COURTING CUSTOMS SOUGHT

By Rev. John Roach Straton,

Pastor Calvary Baptist Church, New York City.

THE two greatest interests of man at large are romance and religion. These are the essentials, and all other things are merely secondary.

Whatever affects, therefore, the marriage customs of the human race is of vital importance. For, come what will, there will be "giving and taking in marriage" to the end of time.

Some have thought that the high cost of living and other conditions would stop young people from plunging into matrimony, but such is not the case. The records show that ten years ago there were 31,537 marriage licenses issued by the authorities on Manhattan Island alone. In 1919 there were 40,075 licenses, an increase during the decade of almost 31.3 per cent.

Marrying Younger

I was asked, a short time ago, by a thoughtful woman of this city, whether or not, in my judgment, young people were entering into matrimony at an earlier age than formerly.

My observation is that the tendency to early marriage is on the increase, and this means, for one thing, that there is not as much courting as there formerly was. Love will find a way, regardless of war, the high cost of living, or any other consideration.

But it is of vital moment to see that the way which leads is wholesome and safe.

Now we are in such a tremendous rush that it has affected matrimony as it has everything else. We have everything but weddings. We have canned music and we have canned food, and we have two-room flats, instead of a home.

These conditions of modern life have affected courtship and marriage, and I think affected it with a profoundly detrimental influence.

Courting at the Movies and in Dance Halls

And even in the city conditions in the former days were far more normal than they are now. In contrast to the old customs, we have courting now done on the fly—and some of it is very fly courting. It is done in the rush of business, and as a couple strolls over some silly bit of sentiment at the movies, or through the impulse which are born upon the dance hall floor.

Young people are thrown together under these artificial conditions in our modern life, and upon the slightest provocation is a proposal of marriage and an engagement. These things are unfortunate, and as a couple strolls over some silly bit of sentiment at the movies, or through the impulse which are born upon the dance hall floor.

Understand me, I am a hearty advocate of matrimony, and I am a lover of youth, but the time has come when we need to face some facts frankly. I never marry a couple without giving them a little kindly advice. I have had that when I see others who are about to be married, and I advise them to guard well the little things of life and the big things will take care of them selves.

Stars and Stripes

The inclination to follow the line of least resistance is not exemplified in a tug-of-war.

A candidate for President took the stump the other day, but no body knows where he carried it, as neither he nor it has been seen since.

The "man higher up" is generally too high to be reached by the court's steepladder.

If it were true that the way to a man's heart lies through his stomach, there would be more splinters in the world.

Once there was a woman who, upon being asked why she never called on Mrs. So-and-so, did not reply "I never go anywhere." But she misunderstood the question.

Everything is coming down except yeast, and that is still rising.

Truth, crushed to earth, will rise again, but, with a lot of politicians sitting on it, it has a hard time getting up.

The fellow who opposes hero worship can generally be found in the rear field bleachers yelling for Babe Ruth to knock another home run.
